

participation, then the Council of State Governments or I am not sure if that's changed, they are going to appoint a couple of people to begin to look at how to organize it. What Senator Beutler and I were talking about is how to organize physically where do they meet, those sorts of items.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, but this steering committee does more than decide where they are going to meet. It drafts rules of procedures and other things which will then be submitted to the delegates when they get there to be...for them to discuss and vote on in terms of approval or disapproval. I want to know who the steering committee...

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: Senator, I have a...I have a list I think of the steering committee members, I just had handed to me, and if I could, I will...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yes.

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: ...just run that over to you, okay.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh, okay, thank you. Members of the Legislature, I am going to offer some amendments to this resolution and I'm going to resist it. I don't believe it was drafted by this body, by that I meant the Unicameral. Since it is a canned, free prepared resolution, which says it must be adopted by 26 states without amendment, thank you, it would indicate that somebody else who has got an agenda put it together. And nothing is wrong with having an agenda. The thing wrong is when people are unwilling to admit it. I definitely have an agenda. I have never denied it, and I make it crystal-clear what my agenda is, and I am suspicious of those who always saying that this very serious act is being done in a vacuum. I don't feel one way or the other. I don't care whether we go north, south, east or west. I don't have any opinion. I don't have any feeling. We are just doing it just to be doing it, that's not true. The parties will have an agenda. The conservatives will have an agenda. The Christian right will have an agenda. I don't...

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...know if there is anybody who acknowledges being a liberal, whatever that was or is, but if there are such creatures, they will have an agenda. If I attended something
